TAFT'S VISIT.

On Wednesday, March 15th, former President William Howard Taft, one of the greatest, if not the greatest American now in private life, will come to Janesville to deliver an address upon "International Peace." Judge Taft is peculiarly fitted to talk on this subject just at this time. His training as a lawyer, his terms as a jurist, his work as governor of the Philippines, later as secretary of war, and finally as president of the United States, has given him a clearer insight into international affairs than perhaps any other man in the United States has today.

Judge Taft is a big man, mentally and physically. He is not a politician and his address is not political, but strictly neutral. He has been one of the big men of the country to stand behind the president in the present crisis and urge others to do likewise. His visit to Janesville is a distinct honor and he should be given a royal reception.

In order to make his visit possible the Commercial club assumed the financial obligations necessary and the charges that will be made for the seats at the Myron theatre are merely to cover the actual expenses incurred. The advance sale of seats should give a good indication of what sort of a reception the distinguished visitor is to receive and the citizens of Rock county should not miss the opportunity of seeing, hearing and meeting one of the big men of the country on his visit to the west.

THE DANISH ISLANDS.

Despite the unusual condition of the European nations at the present time, the confederation of the Central Powers by the Allies, we are informed that Germany really plans to secure the three islands owned by Denmark in the West Indies to use as a base for future naval activity. Repeatedly this tale has been told that one or another of the foreign powers sought these islands and the Christian Science Monitor gives the interesting bit of history of the various activities in this matter during a long period of years that should prove interesting in the present discussion as to their purchase by Uncle Sam.

"Periodically, since the early sixties, the sale of the Danish West Indies to the United States, and their acquisition by the latter country, have been subjects of diplomatic conversation and negotiation. The question came up under President Lincoln, and again under President Johnson, at the instance of Secretary Seward, who was always bent upon the enlargement of the sphere of the nation in the western hemisphere. George Helm Yeaman, United States minister to Denmark, was authorized to confer, if possible, interest on the part of the Danish government, in the desire of his government to become possessed of the three islands of St. Thomas, St. Croix and St. John, of the Lesser Antilles group. The administration of Andrew Johnson, it will be recalled, was greatly disturbed by differences in the republican party growing out of a radical reconstruction policy which the president opposed, with a split in the cabinet and with impending proceedings, all of which contributed toward overshadowing the Danish West Indian negotiations. It is an interesting fact that the next administration, President Grant's, turned from the Danish islands and unsuccessfully proposed the purchase of Santo Domingo; and a still more interesting fact that the trend of affairs ever since has justified the statesmanship which, a half century ago, would have begun the task of strengthening the defenses of the United States in the Caribbean sea.

"Since then Porto Rico has become a United States possession; Cuba a United States protectorate; Santo Domingo actually, and Haiti practically, United States wards. With the changes in the Caribbean occasioned by the settlement between the United States and Spain, in accordance with the terms of the treaty of 1898, Washington interest in the Spanish West Indies was renewed; all the more so because there were rumors to the effect that Denmark, being desirous of parting with possessions that long since had ceased to be profitable to that nation, was contemplating the sale of them to some European power. It was asserted at the time, with much positiveness, that Germany had an eye on St. Thomas, and later, that Russia was a bidder for one or all of the islands.

"Recently there have been serious labor troubles and interruptions of production on the group, with the result that the planters have become restless and are demanding a more intimate governmental relationship. M. Hageman, described as the wealthiest of these planters, it appears, has just published, in Copenhagen, a pamphlet which purports to represent the view of the most influential white residents of the colony, and favors the transfer of the islands to the United States. M. Hageman recognizes the efforts made by the Danes to improve conditions, but views the future of the islands, under Danish rule, pessimistically. Conditions exist, he claims, that must be promptly corrected if the population, already greatly reduced, is not to be decimated.

"With the construction of the Panama canal it was seen, by far-sighted statesmen in Washington, that possession of the Lesser Antilles had become more than ever desirable. Congress, in 1901, went so far as to appropriate $2,000,000 for their purchase but Denmark, without giving a satisfactory reason, withdrew its offer to sell. It was believed by many in the United States then, and this belief has been strengthened by later events, that outside influence of a powerful nature was instrumental in bringing about Denmark's change of attitude. Present information from Copenhagen is to the effect that, if the proposition should now be put to the Danish parliament, and especially if the amount offered in 1901 should be increased, a bill to cede the islands to the United States in the Caribbean able majorities in both houses.

"The one strong point to be brought out in favor of the change of ownership is that which has presented itself successfully in the case of Hawaii, Cuba, Santo Domingo, Haiti and Nicaragua. To avoid possible or inevitable friction, the United States would better take on responsibilities for the protection, guardianship, or even the possession of contiguous territory likely to be sought or seized by other powers. The Monroe doctrine is not altogether a luxury. Its maintenance in the fullest degree involves the assumption of responsibilities some of which may not be altogether welcome. There would be very decided objections in the United States to the transfer of the Danish West Indies to any other power. If it is true that Denmark desires to part with the islands, the United States is practically the only possible purchaser. The United States to delay the purchase unreasonably, or tempt the country to strike a hard bargain. Since the islands are admittedly desirable, since Denmark, presumably, wants to part with them, and since the United States will not let them pass into other hands, the quicker the transaction is closed, and in a manner satisfactory to Denmark, the better."

LENTEN OBSERVANCE.

There was a time when some cautionary words might well have been said about the observance of Lent. While-souled people seeking counsels of perfection would deny themselves food absolutely necessary for their service to the world. Their anxious and morbid souls fretted over imaginary sins. Lacking adequate physical sustenance, they were actually less able to meet the irritations and difficulties of life.

Today few people need advice on that score. They may give up certain diversions, but enter with renewed enthusiasm on others equally unspiritual. They make slight changes in diet, but rarely leave any stable hunger. They have avoided ascetic excesses, from which they were never in any peril.

Still Lent does bring a certain let-up in dissipation to many society circles, which is most beneficial. Often, however, the result is merely that a little renewed energy is accumulated to begin the same old round again Easter Monday.

Do not forget that at the April election the delegates to the national conventions are to be named. There is no contest in the democratic ranks, but a bitter fight in the republican ranks as usual and care should be taken to make a wise selection in choosing the men who wish to represent the state at the G. O. P. gathering.

Why does not Janesville start a Zoo? is heard on many sides. For just the same reason that the recreation park idea that received so much attention some time ago died a natural death for lack of a leader to further the plans and hammer home the need of such an establishment in the city.

Fishermen are finding it hard to realize that Rock river and Lake Koshkonong are closed waters this spring for fishing under the new state law. It will be a big disappointment to many who usually enjoy a few days' sport early in the season when the game fish bite best and the flesh is firm and hard.

Janesville is to have one circus in the city at any rate this season. A brand new one, too, at that. While the date set is still two months off the average small boy is already listening for the music of the band.

After getting thoroughly mad at their partners whose mistakes lost the prize at the bridge parties, some women are just angry enough to go home and wallop their boys for playing marbles for keeps.

Billy Sunday had 50,000 people at his opening in Baltimore. Advertising pays. Billy never got 'em there by hanging out a sign and expecting that they would walk in.

Not more than 5 per cent of bad eggs can now be legally shipped, which will tend to cause a shortage of the supply needed for theatre use.

Now we have the rest room problem well in hand why not take time to consider the question of a Y. W. C. A. or something along that line?

A girl mustn't expect that her singing and playing can be considered artistic unless she has on a new and stylish gown.

To some people the worst of the horrors caused by the war is the predicted price of 40 cents a gallon for gasoline.

The Daily Novelette

Mango's Medal.

If there was one thing Ossup Mango was partial to, it was a good moving picture. So he settled down in an aisle seat with a sigh of expectation as the 8th episode "The Hazards of Hannan" began on the screen.

Just as the note explaining the villain's motive was flashed on, a stout man with all his hair in his whiskers wedged himself in front of Ossup on his way to an inside seat.

"Pshaw, I missed the note!" thought Ossup. "Ah! He's going to blow up the bridge!"

Half a second before the dynamite went off, a thin woman with three babies in her arms got in front of him on her way in.

"And I love explosions, too!" muttered Ossup. But a few minutes later he brightened, for the aeroplane chase started.

All during the chase Ossup was gazing at the back of a fireman who had got wedged between Ossup's knees and the seat in front.

"I know!" thought Ossup. "I'll wait for the second show, and see the parts these people have made me miss!" And he did, and during the note scene the thin woman stood in front of him on her way out, the fireman blinked the bridge explosion, and the stout man hid the aeroplane chase.

SEATTLE MAYOR, HI GILL, AGAIN SEEKING THE OFFICE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Seattle, Wash., March 6.—Hi Gill, mayor of Seattle, faces another crisis in his up and down political career at the city elections tomorrow. Gill's former chief of police, E. Griffiths, is his principal opponent in this election.

Even Gill's friends wonder what this election will bring forth. His record shows why: 1910, elected mayor of Seattle on an open town platform; 1911, defeated for re-election on his promise to "reform"; 1914, elected by the largest majority ever given a mayoralty candidate. Pledged to radical reform, he was defeated for re-election on his so-called "corn-cob pipe platform."

These Modern Days.
"They have money, haven't they?"
"I don't know; haven't seen them for about a year."—Judge.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Seattle, Wash., March 6.—Hi Gill, mayor of Seattle, faces another crisis in his up and down political career at the city elections tomorrow. Gill's former chief of police, E. Griffiths, is his principal opponent in this election.

Even Gill's friends wonder what this election will bring forth. His record shows why: 1910, elected mayor of Seattle on an open town platform; 1911, defeated for re-election on his promise to "reform"; 1914, elected by the largest majority ever given a mayoralty candidate. Pledged to radical reform, he was defeated for re-election on his so-called "corn-cob pipe platform."

"I don't know; haven't seen them for about a year."—Judge.

COUNTY TEACHERS ARE ENTHUSIASTIC OVER ANNUAL MEET

Meeting of Association, Held Here Saturday Successful and Interesting In Every Way.

The most successful meeting since the Rock County Teachers' association was organized is the way the annual session of the body held at the high and Webster school buildings here on Saturday. In matters of attendance, enthusiasm, program and other features which all go to make a gathering of this nature successful, members say this year's meeting eclipsed all other county educational gatherings.

Three hundred teachers of the instructors, were present. A general meeting for all was held during the morning. The afternoon session was of a divisional nature, pertaining to country schools, kindergarten, grade and high schools being discussed in separate meetings by teachers in charge of the various lines of work.

L. A. Markham, county Y. M. C. A. secretary, and members of the community committee of the Janesville Commercial club were before the opening meeting of the afternoon session to the calling of the sectional meetings. Mr. Markham described the ten acre corn contest for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. and other matters. The idea is to have the instructors interest their scholars in the competition and develop Rock county seed corn to a higher standard. As an inducement for better corn the commercial club, Mr. Markham explained, promises a day's automobile trip and entertainment to all contestants who enter and receive the corn and then exhibit it at a time set by the contest committee. This contest is distinctive from the acre contest and only boys and girls of the county up to thirteen years of age can enter.

HARD TIMES FUN AT HARD TIMES DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. William McNeil Give Novel Entertainment Saturday Evening—Enjoy Old Fashioned Games.

Mr. and Mrs. William McNeil entertained at a "hard times" dinner and dance at the Grand Hotel on Saturday evening. On account of the high times the guests arrived in delivery wagons and other cheap vehicles that could be pressed into service. They were all dressed in hard times costumes. The dinner was served in the private dining room. The tables were covered with red tablecloths, lighted with tallow candles in bottles and glass oil lamps, and decorated with flowers. The dinner was a good second hand, on account of the hard times. Long wooden benches were used as seats. The dinner was served by waitresses whose costumes showed that they felt the hard times, and consisted of vegetable soup, chicken with dumplings, cabbage salad, pumpkin pie, cake, coffee and stick candy. "All day suckers" and gum. After the dinner they adjourned to the large dining room and played "Going to Jerusalem," at which Mrs. H. S. McCoy won the prize. The men, blindfolded, then tried to pin the tail on a donkey. The game proved to be the most popular. The Norman Carle came the nearest to it and won the prize. Then the ladies tried to pin a shamrock on St. Patrick, and that prize was won by Mrs. Harry McNamara. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing. The program consisted of Virginia Reel, Polka Redowa and the old quadrilles, at which an expert and well called to cut the figures. The dancing was furnished by a one man orchestra from Rockford. He played the drum with his foot, the accordion with his hands and the mouth organ with his mouth. The affair was a great success and a fitting finish of the season's gaieties before Lent. The guests present were Messrs. H. E. McCoy, E. Medardson, Stanley Tallman, H. W. McNamara, Stanley Dunnidie, Charles Tallman, Allen Lovejoy, Burns Brewer, Norman Carle, Dr. Frank Parnsworth, Arthur Gange, Fred Green of Watertown, George King, E. H. BOYS OF ENGLAND DO THEIR SHARE OF WORK IN MUNITION FACTORIES

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Woolwich, Eng., March 6.—Ten thousand boys too young to fight are doing what they consider the next best service for their country—turning out munitions in the munition factories here. In ordinary times many would have become office boys, clerks, or telegraph messengers, but today the majority come from points miles from the factory. They are the oldest men make the shells and guns needed by the men at the front.

The pay is attractive. A smart boy can earn $7.50 a week, or even $10 if he has a good record. They work steadily at work for as long as 12 hours a day. Parents who have to choose between putting their boys to work at a trade at $2 or $2.50 a week and allowing them to be in the arsenal at the higher remuneration are naturally inclined to decide on the work which not only brings in the money but also seems to be the national service.

Social workers who have the boys' welfare at heart are inclined to lament that so many should be entering the army at such a young age. They say that the boys are not likely to become a problem after the war and that the country might well remember that the "lost army" of the munition workers played no small part in the difficult time.

The daily life of these boys shows what sacrifices they are making. Thousands of them are working in the factory, and some have to leave home as early as 6:30 in the morning and cannot get back till 9:30 in the evening. All work twelve hours a day, starting at 8 and ending at 8. They take the night shift too, also for twelve hours, and often a boy may be seen asleep from sheer exhaustion on his way home in tramcar or train.

Every effort is made by the Ministry of Munitions to safeguard the health of the youngsters, but the problem is a difficult one. Eight hours shifts are being urged and efforts are being made to improve the transportation facilities to and from the arsenal. One of the latest suggestions and the one most likely to be carried out is to build miles of huts close to the arsenal where the boys could live while engaged in shell-making.

AUSTRIANS MAKE A KICK OVER ALLOWING GERMANY TO OPERATE OIL FIELDS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Budapest, (Via London), March 6.—The action of the Hungarian Parliament in consenting to a bill permitting German capital to exploit the new oil fields in Transylvania has aroused a flood of criticism. The oil fields, unexploited as yet, were discovered only three years ago, but there has been a widespread public belief that they would prove to be a natural treasure worth untold millions to Hungary. Concessions for their exploitation have now been turned over to the Deutsche Bank of Berlin, in return for the latter's promise to invest $5,000,000 in the work of development. This is characterized by the Opposition as "selling our birthright for a mess of pottage."

The center of each of the two Transylvanian fields consists of a group of oil springs "gushing up from the earth in a quantity sufficient to supply the whole of Central Europe with gas and oil not only for lighting but also for industrial purposes."

Just how far the concessions to the Deutsche Bank go, is not yet clear, but there appears to be no doubt that they will give Germany a clear advantage and control in a field where Hungarians had long hoped to build up a purely national enterprise. When the bill granting the concession was brought up by Count Tisza, the independence party raised its usual objections, urging that "the oil fields should be exploited and organized by the state in order that they should serve as a national source of wealth, and thus replace the dear coal, mostly imported from Germany." One of the speakers declared "this oil will fall to the Germans, who will take care that the gas will not be any cheaper than the coal."

One of the newspapers has since explained the transaction in an interview with Tisza, in which he says that the transaction was necessary because Hungary has not enough money to develop the oil fields herself.

SYNOPSIS.

Little Helen Holmes, daughter of General Holmes, railroad man, is rescued from imminent danger on a scenic railroad by George Seagru, a newspaper reporter. Young womanhood, Helen saves Storm, now a man, her father, and his friends. Amos Rhineland, a rancher, and Robert Seagru, promoter, from a threatened collision. Safebreakers employed by Seagru steal General Holmes' survey plans of the scenic line for the Tidewater. Helen would the general and escape. Her father's estate badly involved by his death, Helen goes to work on the Tidewater. Seagru uses Spike to set fire to a powder train hauled by Storm's engine. Helen saves Storm from a horrible death. Helen recovers the survey plans from Seagru, and though they are taken from her, she secures an acknowledgment of the survey blueprint. Storm, employed by Rhineland, wins a fight with Seagru's men for possession of a consignment of railroad gas. Helen and her confederates, safe-breakers steal Rhineland's pay-roll money. Helen pursues and, with a policeman's aid, captures two of them and recovers the money.

SEVENTH INSTALLMENT

"SPIKE'S AWAKENING"

Resolved to get completely away from the constant interruptions in his work, Amos Rhineland replaced his burned camp with outfit cars and moved at once to the end of his construction work, now well advanced on the desert.

The new equipment was as complete as money and energy could suggest. And no sooner were the cars out on a spur at Baird—near the end of the new line—than limonem were busy making telegraphic connections for them with the Tidewater system. The moment the wiring was done Storm suggested the first message over the new line ought to go to Helen, who had now been transferred from Signal to Las Vegas, a division station below Baird. Rhineland was pleased with the suggestion and Storm wrote out a telegram. The operator sounded Helen's call, and after a moment announced she was on the wire taking Storm's message. It read:

Rhineland says contracts on Number Nineteen. Bring them up Sunday. Storm will meet train here and drive you over to camp.

Seagru, during this time, had already made counter-dispositions to meet Rhineland's arrangements and had established a secondary headquarters at Las Vegas, where he controlled all telegraphic connection.

Spike had been lagging in following Seagru up the line as directed, and the latter sent as many unpleasant messages as he could to Oceanside, where Spike was in retreat. But as Seagru's continuing summons grew more and more peremptory Spike was obliged to take notice and get under way for the desert himself.

Leaving Oceanside the night after a carouse, he woke next morning as the train was pulling into a desert town strange to his eyes. Somewhat muddled, anyway, and being unable to recognize his surroundings, he asked a fellow passenger the name of the place; but he forgot it the moment he heard it. However, on scanning closely the appearance of the block of crude buildings facing the station, he reached the conclusion it would be a good place to supply at least one of his needs, and forthwith hastened from the coach to the nearest corner grocery. Once inside the place, his attention was held for a moment by a rambling discussion carried on by a group of early morning loafers. Spike, never happy outside a wrangle, struck unhesitatingly into the talk, which was concerning how loud Caruso could sing, and disputed practically every statement advanced by anybody. After prolonged loss of sleep in the city and with nerves none too amiable at best, now shattered by drink, he was in an exceptionally surly state, and before he knew it had a fist fight on his hands.

The brawl was short. The three or four whom he had angered sat on his together and, making a job of it, threw him bodily out on the sidewalk. One of the party proved Samaritan enough to follow him out and hand him his cap and a letter he had stuck inside it before leaving Oceanside to read at his leisure. After putting the note away he had forgotten all about it and opening it now, found another savage summons from Seagru bidding him come to 116 Sloan alley, Las Vegas, at once.

AT THE APOLLO.

Geraldine Farrar Tonight in "Temptation."

The appearance of Geraldine Farrar in another photoplay production by the Lasky Feature Play company, following her great success in the screen version of "Carmen" is one of the notable photographic announcements of the season. Miss Farrar's next production is entitled "Temptation" and will be seen at the Apollo tonight. Hector Turnbull is the author, and Cecil B. DeMille, who directed "Carmen," personally supervised and directed "Temptation."

"Temptation" will reveal Geraldine Farrar for one of the few times in her artistic career in a modern role with the present day dramatic theme. The story of the play concerns the trials and hardships endured by a young American girl to obtain a hearing before grand opera audiences. On this account it will not be easy to dissociate the star and incidents of "Temptation" from some of the prima donna's own personal appearances in her climb to the top of the operatic profession. A glimpse is had of a life back of the scenes in a big opera company.

"Temptation" will be shown tonight. Among those who appear in support of the star are Thelma Robertson, de Cordoba, Raymond Hatton and Elsie Jane Wilson.

AT THE APOLLO.

Marguerite Clark in "Helene of the North."

The great army of photoplay fans who have before been captivated by the charming talents of Marguerite Clark will be thoroughly delighted to know she will be seen again in "Helene of the North."

Especially created for this entrancing little star, "Helene of the North" provides Miss Clark with innumerable opportunities for the exploitation of her wonderful pantomimic power. Moreover, it presents a story with a construction so new and different that it will probably be pronounced to be one of the greatest screen novelties ever created.

The story opens in the drawing room of a wealthy English society woman. For the amusement of her guests she suggests a fagot party, in which each person present shall place a fagot in the fire and tell a story during the time it burns. When it comes to Helene's turn she tells a story, a thrilling indeed of her former life in the Canadian woods, of the man she met and loved, but whom since she has never seen, of the half-breed, Pierre, who came between them and threatened to kill the other, Ralph, if she married him, of the cure, who eventually actually did wed her to Ralph, while Pierre thought she was being married to him. The astonished guests turn to her and ask, "And have you never seen your husband since?" "No," she replies, "he left the next day on a secret government mission."

At that tense moment a new guest is announced, Lord Traverse. He enters the room, and Helene is confronted by her husband.

AT THE APOLLO.

Marguerite Clark in "Mice and Men." On Wednesday Marguerite Clark will be seen in her latest picture at the Apollo.

In "Mice and Men" Miss Clark has an unusual opportunity to do especially clever work because, during the course of this play, she portrays every stage in the development of an orphan girl from her unfortunate and unhappy life as a child to her ultimate debut as a charming and graceful society bud. Then, having reached maturity, she proceeds to break hearts all over the place. Marguerite Clark is also victimized by the beauty and charm of the little coquette whose ingenuously appeals to him in contrast to the studied wiles of another woman with whom he has come in contact.

The other woman's efforts result in a big mistaken tangle which involves the officer in an unmerited accusation, of which he is eventually cleared. But there still remains the love of his uncle for Peggy as a further barrier. The situation resolves itself into a battle of wits between the older and mature student and the impetuous young hero who comes back from the war covered with glory. The question is, will hero worship and youthful impressionability conquer over the strong sense of gratitude which Peggy feels for the man whose unselfish devotion has lifted her from the obscurity of a number in the founding home to her present enviable position in the social world.

The talented little star has among her supporting cast such estimable players as Marshall Neilan, Clarence Handyside, Charles Waldron and Roberta Conville.

FOODS THEY BUILD OR DESTROY

Amazing but rarely suspected truths about the things you eat.

By ALFRED W. McCANN (Copyright, 1915, by Alfred W. McCann.)

CHAPTER 25.

Wonders of plant and animal life, which commercialism ignores, in denatured food stuffs that it now sends to market.

In the bodies of animals and plants are twelve food minerals are built into many complex combinations and as they are being built up they are also being broken down. In disease they break down faster than in health. As the tissue is destroyed by daily wear and tear it is transformed into simpler chemical compounds and passed out of the body. In order that the living body may replace its broken down cells at must and constant new supply of the elements from which those cells are evolved.

These elements, as we find them in the soil, can be called non-living matter. The chemical processes which transform this non-living matter into living tissues are the same in plant and animal as we have seen with this difference: the higher plants are capable of taking the non-living matter from the earth and compounding it or organizing it into the wonderfully complex substances which form their structure. We have already seen many instances of this. Animals do not possess this power. Animals depend for their existence upon foodstuffs prepared from the non-living matter of the soil by the plants that have the power to prepare them. Otherwise man could eat earth, stone, or clay and thus obtain all the elements necessary to his existence. We have seen why he cannot do this.

Plants obtain the energy which enables them to perform their mysterious work of organizing the non-living matter from the sunlight, and only in the presence of sunlight can they carry on the upbuilding processes which give them their tissues. Green grass will not grow in the dark.

We know that under the influence of sunlight plants are capable of combining the carbonic gas and nitrogen of the air with water and the mineral salts of the soil into such substances as starch, fat, and albumen. They always do this in the presence of the light minerals.

We know that to bring about these changes depends upon the presence of a chemical substance which is found in their green part and is called chlorophyll. We know that chlorophyll requires exposure to the sun's rays in order that it may be able to perform its serious work, but of the processes by which it does that work we know nothing.

We know that various parts of the plant and various organs of the body contain substances that can be extracted. These substances are called enzymes or ferments or vitamins. Some of them are pepsin, trypsin, and albumin. There are many others which need not be mentioned here.

These ferments and vitamins are found in the grains, in the marrow of bones, in egg yolk, and other foods and are just as indispensable to the health of the body as the food minerals.

We now know positively that in the human body they serve the purpose of assisting to form the various foodstuffs which are furnished to the animal by the plant into substances that can be absorbed and built up into animal tissues.

Ordinary bakers' yeast is a ferment having the power to transform starch and sugar into alcohol and carbon dioxide. It possesses the power to rearrange the molecular composition of sugar and starch.

It is a strange but interesting fact that formaldehyde and wood alcohol, which are deadly poisons, contain exactly the same elements as those which make up the composition of grain alcohol, and acetic acid, whiskey, and vinegar.

Arch, cane sugar, glucose, lactose, and carbolic acid also contain the same elements exactly—carbon, hydrogen, and oxygen. The only difference among them is in the proportions and arrangement of them. It is this difference which makes some of them beneficial foods and some of them deadly poisons.

Ordinary starch can be converted into sugar by the action of ferments. Sugar can then be converted into lactic acid, alcohol, and acetic acid, depending entirely upon the character of the ferment employed.

In other words, there are good and bad ferments. That we sometimes allow the bad ferments to develop and kill off the good ones with so-called "harmless" preservatives will be shown as we proceed.

It was thought at one time that the ferments found in the digestive glands were the only ferments to be found in the animal body. Accordingly our knowledge of their conduct in the processes of digestion was limited and in the treatment of many diseases the symptoms alone were treated for the reason that the cause was never suspected.

It has been determined in recent years that ferments are everywhere and they are present in every cell and are intimately concerned in all the manifestations of life.

As many as a dozen different ferments have been found, for example, in the liver cells.

It has also been demonstrated that for the maintenance of life in the case of the higher plants the organized processes of digestion are limited and in the treatment of many diseases the symptoms alone were treated for the reason that the cause was never suspected.

So it is seen that even in the case of the higher plants the necessary food minerals, if the ferments are absent, are destroyed or decomposed, vegetable or animal life cannot be normal.

Each of these ferments has a special function to perform in the animal body, for instance, some of them, such as pepsin, can act to advantage only under acid conditions. Others, such as ptyalin, require an alkaline condition. Still others can act under acid, alkaline, or neutral conditions. Fixed laws control them.

Certain ferments will act only upon certain definite substances and under the proper conditions.

Pat-splitting ferments, for instance, will act only upon fat; diastase ferments will act only upon starch and sugar; proteolytic ferments will act only upon albumen.

Of their chemical composition little is known that is definite and just as little is known of the equally important vitamins. We do know, however, that food of the wrong kind, food badly prepared, food which has suffered an unnatural loss of some of its elements, can set up conditions that are hostile to the action of these ferments, and that in setting up these conditions we are inviting physiological discord which means disease.

It is imperative that we do not interfere with the normal conditions that control the conduct of these little workers in the body. As we go along all this will be explained simply and so fully that many of us will doubtless wonder why we ever tolerated the food conditions that are about to be described.

REFORMS IN CHINA BEING WORKED OUT

In Midst of Revolutionary Movements Chinese Leaders to Effect Betterments in Troubled Land.

(By Associated Press.)

Peking, March 6.—Even in the midst of revolutionary movements and monarchical preparations which have back two thousand years, there are some progressive Chinese leaders endeavoring to work out the betterment of China and the Chinese in a quiet scientific manner. One of the most important of the recent movements is an effort to standardize and simplify the Chinese language.

This effort has been approved by President Yuan Shi-kai and is under general discussion in the Chinese press. It has the approval of the minister of education and foreign affairs, and of the Chinese language and knowledge of the Chinese language and appreciate the great difficulties presented by the various dialects.

The simplification and standardization of Chinese textbooks for general use throughout all the provinces is regarded as imperative before education can make great progress in China and result in unification of the various provinces.

The annual expenditure for the upkeep of the army and navy is reported to be approximately $40,000,000 gold; while the amount the central government appropriates for education is only one fifth of that sum.

The sentiment throughout China is that more money must be used for education, with a proper system of taxation, China can realize sufficient money to maintain schools, but educational experts are universally agreed that adequate results cannot be attained in Chinese schools until the written language of the Chinese is standardized and simplified.

Prominent educators recently suggested the creation of a board for the accomplishment of this work. They would have such a board modify the present florid style of composition and put the Chinese classics, that is the better known works of Confucius, in simple language with simplified characters. This education would take from the Mandarin dialect as used in Peking, which is the language of scholars, possibly five thousand Chinese characters sufficient for ordinary expression. This would be the standard vocabulary for all China.

The pronunciation of the characters would be standardized in such a way that the written and spoken words would be exactly the same in every province.

The educators suggest that this reform board would make text books and dictionaries containing the five thousand words or characters adequate to cover the first five years of primary school work. They regard that as the vital basis for educational reform in China, and suggest that more elaborate dictionaries and standard text books could easily be worked out so as to put education even in the universities upon the same basis in all China.

At present the pronunciation of Chinese characters is different in practically every province. A Canton man is absolutely unable to understand the language of a Pekinese until he has studied the pronunciation. The same is true of men from adjacent provinces in either the North or South of China.

It is estimated that the plan for standardizing Chinese would bring about universal language in China in less than forty years. If compulsory education were adopted, and the Mandarin dialect, or the dialect of the educated class, were taught in all schools. Missionaries and other foreigners who have lived in China for many years are almost unanimous in their belief that the extremely difficult and varied language of the Chinese is the greatest barrier to China's progress. Written and spoken Chinese are in such hopeless complexity that there are very few Chinese scholars who have been able to master all the dialects even in a long life time of continuous study.

Only artists of the first class are able to write certain Chinese characters in less ornate manner, and the reformers who are seeking to standardize the language urge that writing be done in what is known as the grass characters. These have less shading and the stroke can be made with a conventional pen in regular copy books. By the adoption of this style of characters in the newspapers and in all official documents and correspondence, educators believe the simpler form of writing would readily be popularized together with the simple standardized vocabulary.

Forty Years Ago

The Janesville Daily Gazette, March 6, 1876—Fair weather Christians did not attend church yesterday.

A good sprinkling of farmers in the city today, notwithstanding the sprinkling condition of the weather.

The attention of the alderman of the second ward is called to the condition of the gutter at the intersection of North Fourth avenue and Bluff street. The gutter here is in such a state that it throws the water, with the sediment it washed down the hill, directly on the sidewalk, making it very bad for pedestrians who are obliged to travel that street of walk.

Do our citizens propose to have a centennial celebration in the city this year. If so, it is time steps toward an organization for that event were being made. Neighboring counties are making their arrangements for this event, so why can't we do something. The beautiful snow disappeared rapidly under the insinuating persuasions of our spring rain.

WOMAN'S PAGE

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

The Law Apparently is On Ortrude Townsend's Side.

"George, I have been thinking we ought to have a talk with father and see if something can not be done to safeguard our interests a little. It is clear that Ortrude will never sign that paper acknowledging that she has had her third of the property and agreeing to claim no further share. As long as that is so, steps should be taken to keep her from fleeing us entirely."

"I am not anxious for the job of asking him to turn over everything that he owns to his children after the manner of old Lear. It is a delicate subject, you must admit," George said, sticking his feet on the window sill and puffing at his cigar with enthusiasm.

"I guess there is no danger of dear old Daddy's misunderstanding us and imagining that we are after anything he could want or use. Even his patience is worn out, and I guess he has given up all hope of her doing the fair thing by him or us."

There was silence for a while after Dudley stopped speaking. George took his feet from the sill to flick the ashes from his cigar through the open window.

"The whole thing is certainly a mess. I am not enough of a lawyer to know what could be done. I suppose he could give each of us a farm and Marian the block of stores and we would not have anything more to do with them than we do now, only we could be sure that money grabber would not get her claws on them," George looked at Dudley, who sat looking forward with his elbows on his knees, gazing at the floor. Just then the door opened and the father walked in.

"Here, Daddy, take your easy chair," Dudley rose and took a rocker near enough to be in the group.

"What are you fellows discussing so earnestly?" asked Jacob, for the conversation was at a standstill.

"I'm afraid the subject is a hard one to discuss, but if you would not mind," began Dudley, but his sentence trailed off into silence.

"What's this?" asked Jacob, looking keenly at the boys. "Speak out."

"The truth is, father, we were talking about what Ortrude would probably do if it came to a division of your estate," blurted out George, then fell to puffing vigorously at his cigar.

"Well," encouraged Jacob, dropping his head on his hand.

"You will not misunderstand," Dudley's voice was troubled. "Our relations are such that there is no chance for you to think for a minute that we—"

"There, there, say no more about that. What do you suggest?" Jacob's tone was dreary. His thoughts were traveling a road which was so familiar that there seemed no chance of a new outlook.

"If we were only as simple as that," interrupted Jacob with a groan.

The boys did not answer and he continued after a pause:

"Don't you know that I cannot sell, mortgage or deed away any real property of mine without my wife's signature?" There was silence in the room.

"She knows that, I think, and that no will that left her out would hold in court. I am carrying a very heavy load, my friend."

Dudley reached out and grasped his hand. "Don't you care, dear Daddy. All the plunder is not worth being unhappy over," Jacob answered the boyish smile with a grateful look.

THESE HATS WILL BE SEEN IN SPRING

Look for hats like these on the heads of the fair ones this coming spring and summer. The hat at the top is a very simple though attractively chic turban. The model is of white broadcloth with a telescoping crown.

It is boldly adopted throughout the country we cannot provide our armies with such an adequate supply of munitions as will enable them to bring this war to an early and successful conclusion. I very earnestly commend this book to the most serious consideration of employers and employees.

Household Hints

RHUBARB CLEANSER. Boil rhubarb until soft. While hot put it on the ink spot, old or new. Then wash with soap and water. This can also be used for ink spots on carpets or wood.

LEMONADE. A very simple way to make lemonade: Take juice of two lemons, add one scant cup sugar, let it boil two or three minutes. When cold put in a bottle. It will keep for weeks. Put two teaspoons in a glass filled with ice water. You can serve this from the table without waste.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING. Coffee Economy—Grind coffee and soak it for some time before boiling. Of course it must not be soaked in a pot, but for the reason would turn the coffee dark and give it an unpleasant flavor.

To Remove Rusty Screw—Hold a red-hot iron to the head of a screw for a short time and use a screw-driver while screw is hot.

Asparagus—Cut it up into inch lengths and cook with one small onion well chopped. When done, add milk and thicken slightly. Season with butter, salt, and pepper and add chopped hard-boiled egg.

Old-Fashioned Apple "Cheese"—Take two pounds apples pared and sliced, one sliced, one whole. Add juice and grated rind of a lemon and a little water. Put them all into a stew pan and set it over the fire till the apples are reduced to a pulp, turning occasionally. Let it boil twenty minutes, stirring constantly, then pour into small molds. It can be kept a long time in a cool, dry place. Nice as a dessert with cream.

Economical Cream Puffs—One egg, one cup milk, one cup flour, pinch salt, one teaspoon sugar, one teaspoon melted butter. Sift flour, salt and sugar three times. Beat egg, milk and butter thoroughly and add gradually to flour. Beat hard for three minutes. Grease muffin tins and heat in oven (tins must be hot). Fill tins half full and bake fifteen minutes in hot oven. When cold cut open and fill with following cream: Make a custard with 1½ cups milk, two tablespoons cornstarch, pinch salt, one beaten egg, half cup sugar; boil until thick, add vanilla. When cold fill puffs. This amount will make eight puffs.

Roast Pork Shoulder—Buy a fresh shoulder, put in a roaster, season and roast slowly three hours. Make a thin bread dressing and cover top of roast last half hour it is in the oven. Now you have your Sunday dinner.

Hot Lunch—Buy a Sunday evening, sliced cold with lettuce leaves. Add day noon take remains, which will be little bits of fat and a nice, big bone, and put on to stew with a little water. Make drop dumplings or egg noodles. Now take remains and cut up in bowl with onions and cold potatoes and have a nice fried hash, having four nice meals at the rate of about one dollar, which is just as good as cold chicken, besides a bowl of clear grease.

Raisin Salad—One cup celery cut in pieces, one-half cup walnuts in pieces, one-half cup raisins chopped. Serve with cream dressing.

Nut Roll—Make soft dough by mixing well three cups flour, 1½ cups warm water and one teaspoon salt. Cover with warm plate about ten minutes. Flour it, roll it out as thin as tissue paper. Filling: Three cups chopped walnuts, 1½ cups sugar, three teaspoons cinnamon. Mix, spread on dough, sprinkle with melted butter, roll, butter again, bake in moderate oven.

Mock Chicken Gravy—Pare potatoes, boil in salt water, then take water, add a lump of butter the size of walnut. Take flour, stir up with milk same as other gravy, beat up an egg and add to thickening. Add a little pepper.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Letters may be addressed to Wm. A. BRADY, M. D., in care of the Gazette

AN INTOLERABLE NUISANCE.

What is a "nuisance" in the sanitary sense? A statute definition is as follows: Anything deemed detrimental to life or health found to exist within the municipality shall be a nuisance within the meaning of this act.

Clearly this would cover the public sneezer with shame and confusion. A sneeze is a personal thing. It is a protective function without which the body would suffer from many infectious conditions, normally avoided by the act of sneezing. A sneeze not only forcibly ejects droplets containing infectious germs, but it has a remarkable effect upon the circulation and nutrition of the lining of the nose, tending to fortify the mucous membrane against microbe invasions—if you will have it so, taking "cold."

When you sneeze you do it for the good of your health. No one has a right to interfere with your sneezing. But YOU HAVE NO MORE RIGHT TO SNEEZE OPENLY IN PUBLIC THAN YOU HAVE TO SPIT IN YOUR NEIGHBOR'S FACE. That doesn't sound exactly elegant, but neither does the open-face sneeze. In fact, the unpleasantness of the open-face sneeze is a far more dangerous thing for the bystander than is expectation, because the sneeze sprays the air with minute floating droplets of mucus or moisture in which are suspended live bacteria and bystanders can scarcely avoid inhaling some of the spray, whereas sputum on the floor or ground soon dries and the bacteria are blown about in the air, and even virulent disease germs can scarcely withstand this drying process, as practical experience has shown.

The indefensible habit of expectorating into the open air is a common use of a roller towel or a common drinking-cup or a public toilet do not inspire nearly so much fear in our timid mind as the execrable wretch who perpetrates a wide-open sneeze upon the occupants of a car, theatre or room. Such a peddler of infection is a nuisance of the first magnitude. The time will come, we trust, when he will be promptly and unceremoniously grabbed by the collar and dragged off to a sanitary cell in the nearest police station where he belongs. Policemen ought to be active members of the first line of defence anyway.

Street cars, steam cars, public halls and the like should add a line to their notices forbidding spitting on the floor. They should also warn the public as follows: YOU MUST SNEEZE OR COUGH DO IT IN YOUR HAND-KEUCHEP.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Buttermilk and Disease. Is buttermilk beneficial to health? Answer—That depends. Not when it is peddled and dipped in the water or on the porch—that invites disease to enter your home. Buttermilk handled in a cleanly way is a healthful beverage for the average person. It may do harm in certain conditions of ill health.

Handkerchiefs and the Laundry. Is there any danger to a laundress in handling soiled handkerchiefs? Answer—Great danger. In all fair-weather handkerchiefs should be sterilized before they are sent to a laundry. The health department might well see to that.

The Reds and the Whites. Please inform me how many red blood corpuscles and how many white corpuscles there should be in the blood in health?

Answer—5,000,000 red corpuscles and 7,000 white corpuscles in each cubic millimeter.

SAVE IT UP.

"No man has any right to waste his powers of protest, fretting and running against the imaginary or the remediable ill of life."—Robert Whitaker.

If all the energy in the world that is wasted not only in fretting and running against the imaginary or the remediable ill of life, but also in pointless, futile protest against the real evils, could be gathered together and put to use, it could really accomplish something, what a great push toward the millennium this old world of ours would get!

I have an acquaintance who is very much troubled by the mistake she makes in her neighborly relations, permitting her laughter to go about with a man of questionable morals.

She Rants and Shouts. I seldom see this woman that she does not bring up this subject and take aim at the imaginary or the remediable ill of life.

Excited and before she has finished she is talking at the top of her voice, especially if I make bold to question any of her statements.

Now, is this the only subject on which she excites herself. There are several similar points of neighborhood conduct which are as a red rag to her feelings.

Whenever I see her expending all this energy on herself, I think of (for whether you realize it or not, speaking in loud tones and getting excited does tire you and use up your energy), think how much she might do if she stored up the energy positively in trying to help community conditions instead of negatively in criticizing them.

Just Suppose She Used That Energy Constructively. Suppose, for instance, she put it into doing settlement work, or into making things pleasant for some of the young people in the neighborhood, or into thinking of encouraging things to say to her friends.

The woman who nags is another type of protest waster. People are always talking about women nagging as if they thought they did it because they liked it," says a friend of mine. "They seem to forget that the reason a woman nags is because the man keeps on being late to meals or leaving his things around or whatever it is she nags about."

It's Foolish to Nag Even When You Have Reason To. True enough. But the reason it is foolish for a woman to nag is not because she doesn't usually have cause enough, but because it is so futile. If she would store up the energy of these daily reproaches and pack it into one big, carefully thought-out protest, she might accomplish something. As it is, she is simply wasting her powers of protest.

Holding a conviction on any subject of public welfare and merely expounding about it to others who think as you do, instead of trying to educate those who don't or getting out and working for it in other ways, is another form of futile protest. Haven't you noticed how often the people in favor of some reform will hold meetings at which the only people present are the people already in favor?

Hating people for their sins is another way of wasting our powers of protest. Hate, you know, uses up a great deal of energy.

This is the use of efficiency, and there is an efficiency of protest, as well as of business or housekeeping.

SYRIAN GIRL STARTS MOVE TO PURCHASE A SUBMARINE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE) Newark, O., March 6.—Miss Annessa Sahadi, 19, a Syrian girl here has sworn her allegiance to the cause of the defense of the United States and she has started a popular subscription fund among the local Syrian Association of the United States asking each member to contribute 25 cents, the total to be given to the Adjutant General of Ohio to use for building a submarine for the United States government.

The project has the approval of state officials and Miss Sahadi was given a check for a substantial contribution by the governor. The bank have volunteered to be depositaries for the fund. Already more than $300 has been subscribed here. Circular letters have been sent to the secretary of every retail clerk association in the country asking for their support and favorable replies have been received from many of them.

Miss Sahadi was born in the foothills of Mt. Lebanon near the cities of Beirut and Damascus, but famous in biblical history, and she intends to show the people of the United States how deeply at heart the Syrian people have the welfare of the United States.

SOCIAL PROBLEMS TO BE CONSIDERED

At National Conference on Charities and Corrections at Indianapolis, May Tenth to Seventeenth.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Chicago, March 6.—Social problems ranging from what to do with the bad boy to the nation's preparedness for dealing with the mass of human wreckage which is expected to be cast on our shores after the European war, will be taken up by the forty-third annual meeting of the National Conference on Charities and Corrections at Indianapolis May 10 to 17.

Announcement of the preliminary plans for the gathering was made from the office of W. T. Cross, general secretary of the conference, here today. Half a dozen allied organizations will meet in conjunction with the general conference.

Business men, newspaper editors and public officials will be invited to give their views of social workers and the practical value of organized charity to a symposium arranged by Graham Ramey, Mayor of New York.

This will be held in connection with the section on social programs.

In the section on corrections, Arthur Woods, police commissioner of New York, and Mrs. Alice Stebbins Wells, a member of the Los Angeles police force, will discuss the police as a social force.

Cooperation between social agencies and the public schools will be considered in a section devoted to discussion of children. The program for this part of the convention will be the appearance of William Wirt, superintendent of the Maryland Bureau of Statistics and Information. Off to school, full of Vim and "Pep"

Don't cram their little "tummies" with greasy meats, starchy potatoes or other indigestible foods. One or two Shredded Wheat Biscuits with hot milk make a warm, nourishing meal that supplies all the material needed for their growing bodies. The perfect food to study on, to grow on, to play on. The crispness of the shreds encourages thorough chewing which develops sound teeth and healthy gums. Being ready-cooked it is so easy to prepare a warm, nourishing meal with Shredded Wheat in a few moments—no kitchen worry or work.

MARINETTE BARBER TRIES TO MARRY 16 YEAR OLD GIRL BUT "PAPA" CAN'T SEE IT

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Marinette, Wis., March 6.—"I love Elizabeth and I'm going to have her," was the only comment Eugene Sliger, a 21 year old barber, would make today regarding the apparent defilement of the 16 year old daughter of the late Papa O'Neil, 16, administered to life's young dream in a moment. Eugene and Elizabeth eloped to Menominee. Satisfiedly married, they took a car for Papa's home to seek the paternal blessing. Papa met the honeymoon car on the way. Boarding, he extended his hand to his new son-in-law. Eugene grabbed as it willingly, but the hand landed on Eugene's jaw. Then O'Neil took Elizabeth home with him.

FORTY PAIRS OF TWINS ATTEND CHICAGO CHURCH

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Chicago, March 6.—Several of the pairs of twins who attended the special "twin service" of the Divinity School Methodist Episcopal church here yesterday, will join the church, the Rev. Burt E. Smith, the pastor, announced today.

Dr. Smith extended a public invitation to every pair of twins in Chicago to attend the service, and as a result almost two score pairs appeared. There were twins in the choir. Twin girls whistled music accompaniments to the hymns, and twin girls played violins. One pair of twin boys, nine years old, were brought by their father from Milwaukee to attend the service for the sermon of which Dr. Smith took as his theme "The Birthright."

Heart and Home PROBLEMS

By—MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters may be addressed to MRS. THOMPSON in care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is it all right for a boy and girl to ask each other personal questions?

(2) Why is it wrong for boys and girls to kiss each other?

(3) Do low lights and a bright fire make a boy more sentimental than usual?

(4) Love is the finest, most sacred thing there is, and kisses are an expression of love. Men and women who value great love do not indulge in kissing because it cheapens and minimizes the power of love. Only when a man and woman love each other enough to marry should she allow him to kiss her.

(5) Low lights and a log fire tell a boy frankly that a girl has arranged the scene with a view to being kissed, and he rarely disappoints her.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of seventeen and will be eighteen in July. Am I old enough to keep a boy company?

(2) If so, should I let my mother help me consider what kind of company to choose?

(3) Does it look nice for a girl to go from her home town to meet a boy in another town, and stay all night?

(4) Does it make a girl dislike a girl if she writes him foolish letters?

(5) If a boy really loves a girl, do you think he will tell her?

(6) If a boy loves a girl, do you think that he would write to her?

(1) You are.

(2) It will be well to let your mother help you decide whether the boy who chooses you are worth having for friends.

(3) It does not look nice and it is something a girl who cares for her reputation would not do.

(4) I presume by "foolish letters" you mean "love letters." A boy becomes disgusted with a girl if she writes him love letters unless he and she are engaged.

(5) If he really loves her and is in a position to make such a declaration, he will tell her. A boy who is not old enough to marry or financially able usually keeps his love to himself.

(6) It depends upon how often he sees her.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young girl graduate from high school and I have been going with a young man about my own age for more than a year. My parents are not very happy about it, and I would like to keep me well dressed, and I could be in society if I cared to, but I have no desire. The young man hasn't much money. He has but few faults, if any. We both live in the same town. He is away part of the time and when away he is prompt about writing and writes as if he cares very much for me. But when he is in town he doesn't see me often. I have the opportunity of going with other nice young men, but have not accepted. Have you anything to suggest?

MODEST VIRGINIA. That because a boy writes interesting letters he is in love with you. Go with other boys and have a good time with other people until he cares enough to speak of his love.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Can you tell me anything that will help to curl my little daughter's hair? It curls nicely in the bath, but the top and each side curl seem to be a little straight. I have read of some fluid that will help curl hair. I hope you will help me. I think curly hair is so beautiful and real improves the looks.

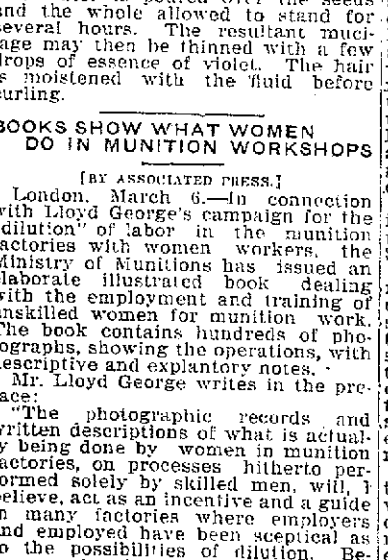

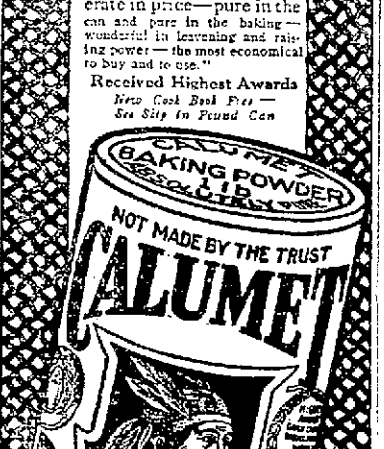

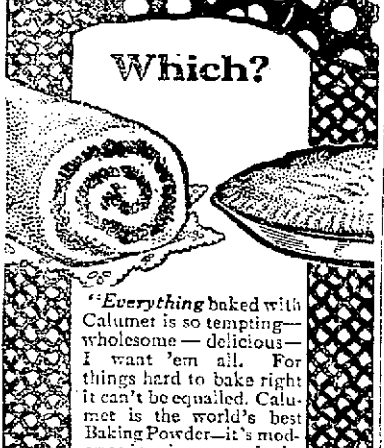

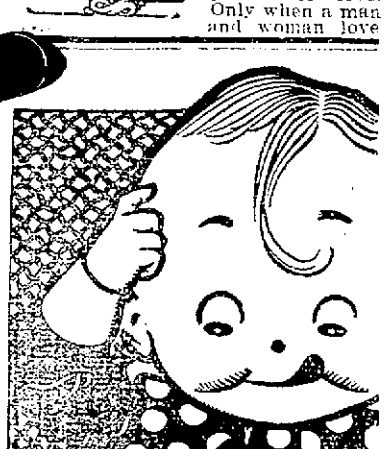

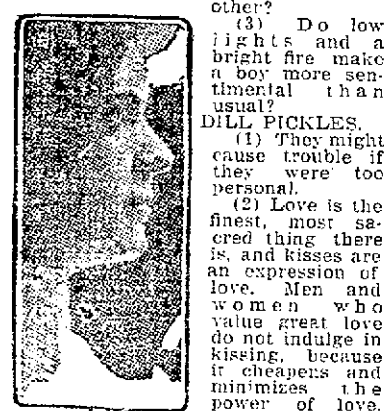

THANK YOU. The following fluid for the hair will keep it in curl when it is first put on curlers.

Take a teaspoonful of bruised quince seed to a pint of hot water. The water is poured over the seeds and the whole allowed to stand for several hours. The resultant mucilage may then be thinned with a few drops of essence of violet. The hair is moistened with the fluid before curling.

BOOKS SHOW WHAT WOMEN DO IN MUNITION WORKSHOPS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) London, March 6.—In connection with Lloyd George's campaign for the "dilution" of labor in the munition factories with women workers, the Ministry of Munitions has issued an elaborate illustrated book dealing with the employment and training of unskilled women for munition work. The book contains hundreds of photographs, showing the operations, with descriptive and explanatory notes.

Lloyd George writes in the preface: "The photographic records and written descriptions of what is actually being done by women in munition factories, on processes hitherto performed solely by skilled men, will, I believe, act as an incentive and a guide in many factories where employers and employees have been sceptical as to the possibilities of dilution. Being convinced that until policy
